NOTE: G-Cast is no longer free, but here are instructions and tips for teachers if you decide to use G-Cast.

*TIPS FOR USING G-CAST:

1) Remind students before beginning their speaking prompt or conversation to clearly state their names and class period. It may help to write this reminder on the board. (Hola. Me llamo _____. Soy estudiante de la primera clase.)

2) If you wish to have the students do their conversations during class on their cell phones, do not have all of the students begin at once. Stagger their start times or only have three or four students/groups using G-cast at the same time. If too many people are calling in at the same time, it clogs the server.

3) Remind students to hit ## when they are finished! If they do not, the students' messages will not transfer to the server for you to listen to later!

4) In order to organize the speaking prompts, you can enter your G-Cast account and hit "Edit" to change the title.

¡Buena suerte!

*TIPS FOR USING K7.NET:

1) Remind students before beginning their speaking prompt or conversation to clearly state their names and class period. It may help to write this reminder on the board.

(Hola. Me llamo _____. Soy estudiante de la primera clase.)

2) If you wish to have the students do their conversations during class on their cell phones, do not have all of the students begin at once. Stagger their start times or only have three-four students/groups using K7.net at the same time. If too many people are calling in at the same time, it clogs the server.

3) You can only have 20 messages in your K7.net server at any given time. It is helpful to set up email accounts for each class. Thus, each class of students will have a different telephone number to call. Another tip is to listen and delete the previous classes' messages before having more students call.
